PROFILE STATEMENT

I am a hard-working, ambitious and reliable person able to work in a dynamic and constantly changing business environment. I possess a great deal of technical IT skills, such as CMS and database knowledge, which have helped me to finish my university dissertation project in no time and to achieve a 1st class degree. During my studies I have managed to become an organised and self-motivated person, capable of solving problems and delivering everything on time. My participation to a business project in my second year proved to be highly beneficial for my professional development. Not only did I improve my time management and organisational skills, but I also developed my communication skills, teamwork and problem-solving methodologies. I am a self-learning person, always thriving to overpass myself and I strongly believe that my technical and non-technical skills will develop even further.

EDUCATION & QUALIFICATIONS

University of Greenwich – BSc Information and Communications Technology

Strategic Analysis and Strategic Management - 70

Enterprise Architectures and Leadership - 75

E-business Innovation and Evolution - 73

PPD3 Thematic Dissertation Project - 70

2018

I have studied BSc ICT at the University of Greenwich. The degree gave me a good theoretical and practical foundation of the use of ICT systems in business industry. The final project consisted of designing and developing a prototype of a small content management system (CMS) to meet the needs of the University of Greenwich and the associated agencies. The specific tool used for meeting the project requirements was Drupal. Not only did it broaden my possibilities for future work placements, internships and job applications, but it also helped me to pick up transferrable skills for future use. These skills include good verbal and written communication in English, critical thinking, responsibility, teamwork, time management, business awareness and enterprise skills.
